Happy Birthday!

Jewelina Galloway Higgins

Jewelina Ann Galloway Higgins was born December 29, 1873, into a family “that represents generations of community activists and leaders, freedom fighters, and empowered women” in Dayton, Ohio and beyond.

Jewelina’s great-grandmother was Charity Broady. When Charity’s father, James Chittendon, brought her to Dayton as an infant, they were among the first Black settlers in town.

After her marriage to John Boady, Charity and her husband became conductors on the Underground Railroad. According to a family biography; “Fugitive slaves would hide in the Broady home, then slip into First Wesleyan Methodist Church” next door, where the church members supplied them with provisions to continue their journey to freedom.

Charity was also in attendance at the 1851 Woman Suffrage Convention in Akron, Ohio, where Sojourner Truth gave her famous “Ain’t I a Woman” speech.

As a child attending the Cooper school on South Ludlow Street, Jewelina grew up learning from her great-grandmother’s example.

Perhaps Charity Broady's stories of the suffrage movement inspired Jewelia—some of Jewelia Galloway Higgins' first activism work began in 1912 with the Dayton Woman Suffrage Association (DWSA), a white woman's suffrage organization.

According to the organization's records, Jewelia and other women of color worked the suffrage booth on Mondays. Under Jewelia Galloway Higgins' leadership, the women began giving speeches and organizing meetings in the community.

But Jewelia Galloway Higgins was not only interested in suffrage—she was also one of the first Black Red Cross nurses in Dayton. The Unique Study Club, of which Jewelia was a founding member, formed a Black chapter of the American Red Cross after World War I.

In 1894, Jewelia married Rev. Charles Higgins, who worked with the War Work Council of the YMCA during World War I. The Higgins' would continue to serve the YMCA for many years—in 1951, Jewelia was honored as one of the organization's fifteen Pioneer Mothers.

Mrs. Higgins was also a founding member of the Black affiliate of the YWCA in Dayton, which was also called the Women's Christian Association No. 2.

As a member of the first executive board of Mary Scott Home for Aged Women, Mrs. Higgins also assisted in organizing the Traveler's Aid society. She also helped to establish the Holloway Children's Home in order to house the orphans and neglected children in the community.

Jewelina Galloway Higgins died December 14th, 1955. Her funeral was held at Sacred Heart Catholic Church—the first service held for a Black person in that church. Like most of her family, she is buried at Woodland Cemetery; in section 80, lot 459.

Lt. Arthur Clulee Jr. (8/6/1918 - 4/19/1944)

Arthur Clulee Jr. graduated from Collinwood High School, then attended Miami University (class of 1941). According to his family, Lt. Clulee had been interested in flying ever since his high school days. He had piloted planes in Cleveland, and in Madison, Wisconsin, where he was certified as a flight instructor.

The day after Pearl Harbor was attacked, Arthur Clulee Jr. was one of thousands of young men who chose to enlist in the US Navy. As an Ensign, Arthur Clulee Jr. received his training at Lakehurst, New Jersey, earning his wings in October 1942. He was stationed at naval bases in Trinidad, Brazil, and Guyana; where he was promoted to Lieutenant.

During a terrible thunderstorm on April 19th, 1944, the 234 foot blimp that Lt. Clulee was piloting crashed into the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of New Orleans. Nine men aboard the blimp were killed; Lieutenant Arthur Clulee Jr. was lost at sea. He is honored with a cenotaph alongside his parents' graves in section 33, lot 869 at Woodland Cemetery.

Upcoming Events!

New Year's Bird Walk:

Bundle up, bring your binoculars, and come enjoy some nature! We'll be looking for our year-round residents and winter visitors like Golden-crowned Kinglets and Yellow-bellied Sapsuckers.

The walk is slow-paced, and mostly stays on the road surface, but sometimes does venture "off-trail" into the grass.

All ages welcome. The tour will meet at the Eichelberger Plaza at the main gates of the cemetery.

Your nature guide will be Amanda Lawson, an Ohio Certified Volunteer Naturalist.

Upcoming Tours:

1/4 @ 9 am
